Dear Ms. Chelet,

I have been fortunate to hunt in a great many places around the world. My experience over the years allows me to truly compare working with Safaris Chelet against many other safari operators. I have been deeply involved with Safari Club International for many years including serving as president of the Tampa, Florida chapter and being on the board of the international organization.

Due to my interest in hunting in West Africa, I consulted with several colleagues as to whom I should book with. It was unanimous: Alibori Safaris and Ngoko Safaris run by Safaris Chelet. This was not a surprise to me since the Chelet family has burnished a great reputation for several decades. Jose Chelet has not only been a legendary hunter in his own right, he has built from scratch a successful safari business. I am particularly impressed with, Jose Chelet Pastor and grandson, Joaquin Marza Chelet who I am glad to have gotten to know personally. I believe their understanding, ability and enthusiasm, like Jose Chelet, to run a successful safari operation from top to bottom is second to none.

Safari Chelet has always been responsive to my many sometimes minor questions prior to and after the hunt. The representations made about the safari, the camp and services has always been factual and accurate. The meet and greet at the airport and assistance with customs and clearing was perfect. The camp facilities are comfortable, clean and well maintained. I enjoyed the courtesy and friendliness of the camp staff. After a long day hunting, coming back to camp was like coming home again. While my wife and I both hunt, I would gladly recommend hunters bring their non hunting spouses to these comfortable camps.

It was clear to me the Chelets have a good working relationship with their local employees. There was much pride in caring for the not only the camp but of the land. Thanks to the Chelets, I look forward to many more successful safaris whether with Alibori or Ngoko Safari companies. Please feel free to use this letter as a reference. I would be glad to talk with anyone who has any questions.

Yours very truly,
